After a successful career in public relations, Mindy Pollack-Fusi switched her focus to freelance and creative writing. She writes regularly for The Boston Globe and has had "Coupling" essays in The Boston Globe Magazine. Previously, Mindy wrote a Bedford Minuteman column called "Personally Speaking" and published essays in "Chicken Soup for the Soul" books. She recently completed a novel and two memoirs.

Mindy opened "The Place" to inspire others to write their stories and achieve their writing goals in a supportive environment.

What is The Place for Words & Workshops?

It is an inspirational space for writers to meet their writing goals!

It is a place where high school seniors can work on their college application essay(s) with Mindy's one-on-one guidance.

It is a place where Mindy enthusiastically leads creative writing groups—memoir and fiction—to encourage others who have always wanted to write. Classes are for all levels of adult writers, ages 16+, and we especially seek out those who want to write but think they can't. (We'll happily prove them wrong!)

The Place for Words & Workshops is also where we can produce your organization's promotional materials or your personal history!

In addition, The Place for Words & Workshops runs other personal development workshops including Women in Empty Nest Transition (WENT). See dates/topics/info online. www.theplaceforwords.com
